

THE FARNHAMIAN.

Vol. XX., No. 3.

December, 1933.

Editorial.

In bringing out the last issue of the year we are tempted to look back on the events of 1933, and as a result we feel impelled to speak of the remarkable series of records broken and made. There have been records in athletics too numerous to mention here, a record in "House" shooting, a remarkable record in the county swimming competition, and last of all, this term, the time of the cross-country run has been reduced by as much as 38 secs. In addition, it seems appropriate to mention the new School fixtures in swimming and boxing.

All these outdoor successes surely point to the health and vitality of the School, which do not flag in spite of slightly diminished numbers. And be it noted that these successes have not been at the expense of our primary purpose. We have taken care of the mind as well as the body, and we can look at our examination results with pride. Well done, School! Go on and prosper. May 1933 prove an inspiration to do even better in 1934.

In July, 1932, it was a pleasure to announce that Professor J. Kendall had founded a prize in honour of his old science master, Dr. George Brown. This prize is an annual reminder of what the whole School, as well as Professor Kendall, owes to a great teacher and schoolmaster—a great debt of gratitude for unselfish service. And now, this term, Dr. Brown has placed us still further in his debt by giving to the School a very large and valuable amount of chemical apparatus and material, his own personal property, for use in the laboratory. It is impossible for us adequately to thank the learned Doctor for such a handsome gift, but we all fervently hope that he will long be spared to come among us with his kindly interest and unfailing cheerfulness.

Not long ago we printed in this column an appeal for a large Union Jack to replace the old outworn flag which has been in use for many years. The appeal has borne fruit and we offer our warmest thanks to Mr. W. A. Bartlett, of Camberley, for the gift of a very handsome flag indeed. Mr. Bartlett is the father of K. W. Bartlett, now at King's College, London.

Debating Society.

A preliminary meeting of the Society was held on September 29th, when a fresh committee and secretary were elected.

The first debate of the term was held on October 13th when Mr. Hern proposed "That this house regrets the discovery of America." Unfortunately the whole house supported Mr. Smallman in opposing the motion; hence the debate was rather one-sided, and was defeated by 16 votes to 1, Mr. Hern unwillingly voting for the motion. I feel bound to say, however, and I think all who were present will agree with me, that Mr. Hern's was a fine piece of oratory.

On October 20th the house debated "That Co-education is the best form of Education." Mr. Patrick, who proposed the motion, said that the most recently developed countries had all adopted co-education with success. Mr. Taylor, in opposition, asserted—and in this most of us were of the same mind—that it was impossible for boys and girls to work properly in the same form, since it was inevitable that a boy would have but one eye and one half of his mind on the blackboard, and the other eye and the other half of his mind on the girl in front. The motion was lost by five votes to 12.

The last meeting up to date was held on November 10th when the subject discussed was "That in the opinion of this house the practice of keeping wild animals in zoos is to be deplored," proposed by Mr. Brock and opposed by Mr. Gardner. The keynote of Mr. Brock's speech was the great danger that would be created if the animals were to break loose, but, as the opposition pointed out, they don't. Mr. Gardner pointed out that the conditions in every zoo are hygienic and the animals treated so well in every detail that in the majority of cases the animals are as contented in the zoo as they would be when free. The motion was defeated by 12 votes to three.

In spite of the fact that several of our "choicer" members have left, the debates have been very interesting and the speeches good. I am glad to see that more younger members are joining the Society and I am quite sure they will not regret it. I hope their example will be followed by others and I am looking forward to the time when Room A will be too small for us and we shall have to "hire the Hall."

Hon. Sec.

She was a beautiful creature and the curves of her body matched the sweep of her limbs. Blissfully unconscious, she lay there mid the serenity of the surrounding foliage. But hark! There is an ominous rustle in yonder thicket. Two gleaming eyes glitter from amongst the leafage and then are gone. Look again! There is a movement in the shadow behind the beauty. A figure is creeping towards her. It drags something metallic which gleams in the setting sun. What is it going to do? Ah! it is behind her. Downward travels the shaft and with an insane glitter in his eye the naturalist adds another butterfly to his collection.

A Bathetic Symphony.

"'Tis the voice of the sluggard, I heard him complain:
You have waked me too soon, I must slumber again."

My poor brain has left me and I am bereft of all but the power to utter the "laugh that spoke the vacant mind." Where it has fled is not for me to know. Perhaps it floats, like the remains of the Prophet, between heaven and earth, or maybe it is disputing the fare with the boatman of the Styx. It may be keeping Cerberus company at the portals of Hell or discussing Plutarch with Shakespeare in the green fields of Elysium. However it is disporting itself, whatever merry prank it is up to, I cannot tell. For my part, I am rambling in the subconscious, that is to say, I am trying to write an article for the magazine. At last I am decided that a tasteful style is not to be acquired like a love of asparagus or a collection of hotel china. I have been working all my life to produce the thing in stupendous, all-star, soul-stirring and even hair-raising articles and this is all I have done about it. And yet I have still the solace of Hamlet:

"... it is not madness.
That I have utter'd: bring me to the test,
And I the matter will re-word; which madness
Would gambol from."

Your editor prances through life like a slightly inebriated schoolgirl, stopping now and then to babble of green fields and the ease of the true artist, never thinking of the nervous wrecks he leaves in his wake. The labours of the ancients in the lower world (judging from the stories told of those far-off times there were many of the ancients there), were nothing to those of the hopeful writer in this magazine age. You may take your Sisyphus and drown him in the waters of Lethe for an imposter who never knew how hard it is to write. "Write an article" the Editor says, quite unconcernedly, just as he would tell his neighbour that there was a depression over Iceland or as he would discuss last night's broadcast talk on the possibility of rearing pea-nuts in the Shetland Isles. He does not stop to wonder at the awful havoc he is wreaking upon an unsuspecting world by turning us literary minded infants loose. Perhaps things would be better if one had something to write about. If only there were slot machines outside the Editor's office that delivered titles taken at random from the pages of the local Press. For instance, a suitable dissertation could be penned under the heading, "Do Chinamen wear pink bathing costumes?" or "Do camels eat oil-cloth?" Such an article as "Are our hip-baths too small for the Fascist Movement?" would create a tremendous stir in several of our Sunday papers and the effect of a disclosure on the lines of "Hitler uses tooth-brush made by Jewish colony" would be beyond ordinary comprehension. You might ask why, since I have such a fertile imagination, I cannot find something to write about myself. The answer is that all I can think about are dangerous concerns like Post Offices, vegetarianism, Sir Oswald Mosley, or Urban District Councils. I dare not think of the result of describing any of these—a knife between the shoulder blades would be a nasty death and incidentally I am rather fond of my shoulder blades.

So far this masterpiece seems to have developed akin to the youthful idea of a line: "Two points that have no size connected by something without width." Or possibly there is a remote connection with those tremendous fractions of our early arithmetic days: pile upon pile of figures gradually heaping themselves into a tottering pinnacle—a simple process called "cancelling" by the unwise, and there remained—nothing. Yet it is not shameful to write of nothing, for if one descends to the ridiculous "one step above the sublime makes the ridiculous and one step above the ridiculous makes the sublime again." Surely, therefore, if this becomes as it seems to be doing, sufficiently ridiculous, it will, like the hungry snake, bite its own tail and become sublime once more. After all we are never so bad that we cannot be recalled.

My brain has returned from its celestial holiday. There is a whirl of wheels and something of sanity is regained. I find that all has not been peaceful in the absence of the master—on the contrary the machine appears to have rattled recklessly on. My paper is scrawled with futile ideas and my time wasted. No more shall I see the magic "Eram" greeting me from my copy of the "Farnhamian." Never again am I to buy a dozen copies to circulate among friends and particularly doting relations neatly done up in blue-spotted ribbon (the magazines, not the relatives). A little flutter in the realms of literature and my Muse is stilled for all time.

Did I catch a murmur of thanksgiving among the Elysian shades.

Nocturne.

The fiery red rim of the sun is just visible over the western horizon. Above it, masses of feathery clouds, streaked with crimson and gold on the side facing the sun, float motionless. Towards the east the sky gradually darkens; from a reddish-blue it fades to blue: then dark blue, blue-black and finally over the eastern hills the black night rises with the phantom evening mists. One by one the twinkling stars appear like the scintillations of some far-off light on the sapphire blue of the sky.

The soft calm silence of evening pervades the moist air; a silence intensified by the intermittent metallic chirping of crickets in the dewy green grass, by the slow sighing of the wind in the long-eared wheat and by the drawn out rumbling of buses away on the road. Along the lane, whose soft brown earth has been churned into deep ruts by the wheels of many carts, the farm buildings look warm and inviting in the yellow light. An old lady is shutting up her chickens for the night; two lovers, arm in arm, stroll silently along the lane, overawed by the beauty of the evening. Cows low softly from the lush green fields.

An unnatural throbbing disturbs the calmness; a noise gradually increasing into a roar. Faintly the outline of an aeroplane is seen against the sky. From three points on the horizon vivid white beams of light shoot out, criss-crossing in diamond-shaped patches of brighter light. Slowly the spokes of light revolve across the welkin; a black speck appears and the beams converge on it. The plane does a mad nose-dive to escape, but the staccato reports of anti-aircraft guns are heard and the plane bursts into flames and falls, leaving a long trail of black smoke to mark its path.

The intense rumbling of gunfire fills the air and from the trees nearby a howitzer booms forth its deadly messengers. The fields are now raw stretches of earth, pierced by great conical pits and littered with the refuse of war—broken gun carriages, empty shell cases and ammunition boxes, barbed wire and shattered equipment. The green hedges are no more, and along the black mud of the lane stretcher bearers stumble wearily with their dead-weight burdens. One wall of the farm house is completely demolished and inside can be seen a splintered table, a dresser littered with broken crockery, and a stove red with rust. No cows low now and even the crickets fail to find sufficient grass in which to chirp. In the wheat field men are digging, not to produce the kindly fruits of the earth, but to provide a shallow grave for a dead body.

My Diary.

The Saturday before Christmas I ambled forth to the local newsagents and bought my annual diary.

Christmas morning arrived and with it came a host of presents. Grandmothers, grandfathers, aunts, uncles; and many more distant relatives, each sent the same present—a diary. (This is the foundation of my belief in telepathy). However, I rose to the occasion and sent one to each of the nine children of the niece of my aunt's step-brother.

When the year turned over a new leaf I decided to do the same, that is as far as diaries are concerned, for I will admit that all previous attempts had been sad failures.

For the first month I kept to my solemn vow and every evening I recorded the more important events of the day. Somehow, for the next month, entries in pencil appeared.

When all the daffodils were in full bloom—I remember this well for some daffodils which my mother had bought and planted turned out to be shallots (a species of onion)—we broke up for our Easter holidays. These lasted only three weeks and so I was compelled to remain at home.

May and June passed with my diary still surviving, although there were a few blank spaces.

One day in July I entered the drawing-room and found my little sister “chewing the cud.” The “cud” appeared to be two July pages from my diary. Fortunately, I retrieved the remaining two pages, but being obstinate they disappeared a week later.

When the summer holidays commenced I departed for the country. I was considerably annoyed to find on arriving that my mother had forgotten to pack my diary. This meant, on recovering it, I had to rely upon my memory, which was so unsuccessful that I was forced, on account of the innumerable crossings out, to destroy three pages.

It was two months later, however, before the fate of my diary was sealed. Writing a letter I caught my sleeve on the ink stand, sending its contents over my diary, thus completely ruining it.

The last I heard of my poor diary was that my mother had given it to her small niece.

My aunt, after her child had licked nearly all the dye off the cover, was forced, in desperation of her child's life, to burn it. Thus ended my diary's noteworthy career.

P.S.—I refrained from buying a diary this Christmas, and, would you believe it, not one of my relations sent me one. My belief in telepathy is strengthening.

'Bus Travel.

'Buses were first introduced a great many years ago, and in those days they were drawn by horses. Nowadays they are drawn by horse-powers, which are said to be found inside the engine. The engine is driven by exploding petrol. Sometimes the petrol goes in backwards, and this rather upsets things. Water is often poured into the engine; to keep it cool, they say. When it boils, they stop and make tea.

The speed at which a 'bus travels is largely dependent upon the gradient of the road, but it varies directly as the reading on the speedometer. Highly technical.

The 'bus is driven by a driver, who sits in the front so that he can tell whether he is going or coming. When he wants the 'bus to start he clutches the gears and throttles the engine; and if he wants it to stop he brakes the wheels.

Most 'buses carry between thirty and forty-five people, the number depending entirely upon where the policeman is. The windows are made of transparent glass, and you can see through them. There are also seats for the people to sit in. If they have springs it isn't a 'bus.

Intending 'bus travellers should first consult a time-table, which tells you what time the 'bus leaves the local cinema. It is best to arrive there about ten minutes late. Then you don't have to wait so long. When you are comfortably, or otherwise, seated in the 'bus, the conductor (also local scandalmonger) comes and gives you coloured tickets, the colour depending upon the amount of money you give him. If you show him a season ticket he growls and goes on.

Soon after the 'bus leaves the town, it arrives in the country. This is where the cornfields grow, Swedes are found, and horses are said to eat mangles. Meadows are to be seen, most of them containing grass. Flocks of tame cows are there, eating the grass, while herds of sparrows are flying over the cornfields at a height of . . . about a stone's-throw to the earth.

The farmer farms on his farm and the miller mills in his mill. People sitting on the banks of the streams are fishing for fish. The absence of kippers and smoked haddock is, however, a great drawback, and most of the fish are found to be savage and untamed.

Woods, containing trees, are also passed. The woodland scene is very pleasant, with a wasp stinging the Scotch terrier, and the sparrow rooking the blackbird. The laurel is looking pretty hardy, but the beech seems quite at sea. Among other animal life is found the fox, who commits foul crimes in the poultry yard, while the weasel is continually popping in and out of rabbit burrows.

Rushing through muddy lanes, past farms where the cows are to be seen laying eggs while the chickens are being milked, we at length find ourselves bidding au revoir to the country and passing through streets, where fields give way to grey roofs and the farm waggons are replaced by dust-carts. The cock's crow is represented by the conductor's blood-curdling cry of "townor!"—a signal that our 'bus-ride is ended.

The cricket season of 1933 was disappointing. We did not expect to have a highly successful term, but as a whole the cricket was slovenly. There was insufficient spirit infused into the play, and at times the First Eleven appeared to take the field with their "tails down."

The batting was uninteresting, chiefly because boys would not try to cultivate as many strokes as possible. But the most noticeable weakness was the fielding, which, in spite of plenty of practice, continued to be weak to the end of the term. There does not seem to me to be any excuse for poor fielding in a school team, and on our field.

Let us hope that in future the team field hard and let nothing pass that is stoppable, and that every member puts his whole heart into the game. When runs are needed quickly the batsmen must go for them or get out. Personal averages are a minor consideration.

If any names are to be mentioned, I would congratulate Wells on his century at Long Sutton, and Baldwin on his whole-hearted bowling and fielding. Hillyer again kept wicket well and batted freely. I commend Ridout and Thurston on their gallant ninth-wicket stand against the Post Office, when they kept their wickets intact for 45 minutes, and turned a seemingly crushing defeat into a draw. This was real fighting.

The Second Eleven did fairly well, and some of the members showed distinct promise. The Juniors, with two or three exceptions, were moderate.

Colours were re-awarded to Wells, Hillyer, and newly awarded to Taylor and Baldwin. Prizes were given to Wells and Hillyer.

At the Surrey Schools' Athletic Association's Sports held at Ashted on the 5th of July, 1933, R. R. Kirk and C. L. Merricks were representatives of the Farnham and District Schools' Athletic Association. Merricks was third in the 440 yards heat. Kirk also represented Surrey in the Inter-County Athletic Championships held at Southend on July 22nd, 1933. He won his heat in the 100 yards in 11.7 secs., but was unplaced in the second round. There was, however, in accordance with the reputation the School has of always producing something worthy of note, one glorious exception. House Notes.

CHILDE.

For Childe the closing stages of the School year 1932-33 were undoubtedly disastrous. After winning the Senior Cricket Cup outright and sharing that honour with another House in the Junior Competition, the swimming was disappointing, and in the Shooting Competition we only benefited by a wooden spoon. Our failure in these activities enabled Harding to gain the Cock-House Shield by three points, so to them, on behalf of Childe House, heartiest congratulations for a well-deserved victory. But remember we "Live to fight again another day," and already we have tackled our task wholeheartedly. From the cross-country run the Seniors obtained the greatest number of points, and, to date, the football has been entirely satisfactory. The Juniors have not been as fortunate, but to them I say, "Carry on undaunted and the reward will be forthcoming." D.W.T.

HARDING.

As Cock-House, Harding last term closed a creditable year's activities. But we must not be content to rest upon our past glory. So far this term we have done but moderately well. By gaining second place, both Open and Junior, in the School run the House led on total points. In shooting the standard has been consistently good, but as holders of the School shooting record for House teams we must keep up that standard. Football has, unfortunately, been very weak, both in Senior and in Junior competitions. In short, if we are to keep our place as best all-round House we must be prepared for some hard work this coming year. W.A.S.

MASSINGBERD.

We have had some bad luck this term in the way of injuries, but in spite of them we are doing quite well. Although the Seniors did not do great things in the cross-country run, they seem to be heading for first place in football. The Juniors are doing as well as can be expected, and certainly show more enthusiasm than the Seniors. Well, Massingberd, if we want the "Shield" we must put out backs into it. I.C.P.

MORLEY.

In the shooting last term we did much better in gaining second place; this term we hope to do even better. In last term's swimming we were third, and next summer we hope to see many more boys learning to swim ready for the competition. In the football this term the Seniors have drawn one match and lost two, while the Juniors have won one match and lost two. The number of boys who entered for the steeplechase this term was disappointing, and even if this was not the cause of our poor position, the lack of spirit shown by some of the members of the House is very deplorable.

Last term we won the Junior Cricket Cup with Childe, and came second in the Seniors. We again won the Swimming Cup, and so finished third in the Cock-House Competition. I am taking this opportunity of thanking our Juniors for their valuable services during the past year. This term our football has improved. So far our Seniors are second and our Juniors first, and we hope to win the Junior Cup. We did quite well in the cross-country run; our Juniors won the Junior Cup. We hope to have a large entry in the boxing at the end of this term.

SUMMER GENERAL MEETING.

The Summer General Meeting of the Association was held at the School on Saturday, July 8th, the Headmaster presiding.

The Membership Secretary (Mr. G. H. Bacon) reported a membership of 345, an increase of eight since the last General Meeting. Reports were received from the Secretaries of the various activities, but the main business of the meeting was to receive and approve the arrangements made by the General Committee for the Memorial Field Fund Fête to be held on July 22nd.

After some discussion, the meeting agreed to form an O.F.A. Dramatic Society. It was stated that Mrs. Bernard Limpus had kindly agreed to produce a play for the Association during the winter. It was also decided that the Entertainment Committee should "carry on" with the London Dinner. A donation was made from Association Funds to the School Prize Fund.

Concern was expressed that though the important business of the Memorial Field Fund Fête was down on the agenda, some 20 members only had made the effort to be present. Over 300 notices had been sent out, and the small attendance was a great disappointment to those who had done much work and spent a great deal of time in connection with the business of the meeting.

THE FETE.

Much has been said about the use and abuse of meteorological observations in conversation and correspondence. Anyhow, we feel bound to begin an account of this year's Fête by referring to the weather. It was fine! True, at noon, stallholders with painful memories of other years looked anxiously at heavy skies, and in the afternoon umbrellas were hoisted for a few minutes; but otherwise it was a delightful day, at the end of which the Memorial Fund had benefited by over £170. The Committee are to be congratulated not only on this handsome result, but also on providing such ample entertainment for a modest shilling. The athletic contest alone was worth much more, and we must all be grateful to the Athletic Clubs of London and Godalming for giving us the opportunity of watching such running on our own ground. We fear that the Band of the R.A.M.C. received less attention than it deserved, for when we were not watching athletic skill or gymnastic precision, or the more slap-stick bicycle hockey, there was the duty of patronising the stalls, or the fun—and risk—of the side-shows, or the call of tea in the marquee. Later on there was a concert for those so minded, and last of all, dancing to the music of Cyril Fisher's Band.

That is the story of this year's happy and successful function. A very short and inadequate story which must suffice, for even if we had the time the Editor could not provide the space for an account which did justice to everything and everybody. But at least we can find time and space to thank those who spent time and trouble and money to produce such a successful result. In particular we must thank Captain and Mrs. Craig for devoting an afternoon to the opening and for their words of encouragement. Captain Craig's appeal to visitors to dive into their pockets was greatly appreciated by those who had worked for weeks to furnish attractive stalls. Here are the names of stallholders:—

Cakes.—Mrs. S. A. Baber, Mrs. Cale, Mrs. Woolgar and Mrs. Jepp.

Minerals.—Mrs. S. A. Baber, Miss Joan Cale, Messrs. S. A. and F. Baber.

Fruit.—Mrs. Stratford, Mrs. Child, Mrs. Margary and Mrs. Allen.

Sweets.—Miss I. Gravenor, Miss J. Robins, Miss U. Talbot and Miss Violet Ridout.

Soap.—Mrs. E. Munton, Mrs. S. E. J. Lock, Mrs. H. Beeken, Mrs. A. J. Morris, Miss Borelli, Miss Penney and Miss D. Brown.

White Elephant.—Mrs. W. Stroud, Mrs. R. H. Hackett, Miss Jean Davis and Miss Jerome.

Fancy Stall.—Mrs. Morgan, Miss S. Morgan, Miss D. Brown, Miss I. Lathey, Mrs. B. Limpus and Miss Ingleson.

A "supper" stall was in the charge of Mrs. A. G. Cross, and a guessing stall of Mrs. J. H. Wood and Mrs. H. Smither.

The work of the tea tent was done by the following: Mrs. W. Elphick, Mrs. G. H. Ridout, Mrs. H. Debenham, Mrs. F. King, Mrs. W. Patrick, the Misses E. and W. Murrell, Mrs. H. R. Robins, Mrs. G. Sherrington, Miss Keyworth, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Nutt, Mrs. H. C. Kingcome, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. L. C. Wright, Mrs. S. H. German, Mrs. E. Goddard, Mrs. V. H. Lowry, Mrs. Menday, Mrs. Macklin, Miss J. Allen, Miss Budd, Miss Beile, Miss W. Clarke, the Misses German, Miss H. Keyworth, Miss M. Lowry, Miss Lewis, Miss C. Patrick, Miss V. Ridout, Mrs. J. Sherrington and Mr. P. W. Elsmore.

There was a variety of side-shows, run by the Old Boys, and arranged by Mr. J. G. Figg, and also a series for which all the Forms in the School—under the direction of Mr. S. E. J. Lock—were responsible. Mrs. C. Edwards, who told fortunes, had many patrons. Mr. W. H. Blake was responsible for many very "compelling" advertisements of the side-shows.

The concert was arranged by Mr. Marshall Barnes, Mr. L. H. Starling and Mr. E. A. W. Morris. Besides these were the following contributors:—Miss M. G. Layton, Mrs. G. M. Starling, Miss Eileen George, Miss Olive Christie, Miss M. Spinks and Miss K. Howlett.

Thanks for services rendered are due to:—Messrs. Mardon and Ball (transport), Messrs. Hickley and Co. (ditto), Messrs. Courage and Co. (marquee), Major H. R. Robins (ditto), Messrs. A. J. Figg and Son (stall frames), Mr. J. W. Swansborough and Mr. H. Homer (trestles and transport), Farnham Co-operative Society (card tables for teas), Farnham Conservative Club (ditto), Wrecclesham Village Hall (ditto), Messrs. O. Willcox and Sons (milk), Mr. F. Rawlinson (transport), Messrs. Lintern and Peters (crockery), Mr. Cecil Robins (pony), Farnham Methodist Church (chairs and trestles), Messrs. A. Robins and Sons (transport), Messrs. Swain and Jones (transport), and the A.A. (direction signs and car park).

The O.F.A. are to be congratulated on getting second place in the triangular athletic contest and on putting up such a good performance in the various events against the brilliant London runners. Results of events:—

Quarter-Mile Relay.—1, O.F.A.C. (C. E. Jones, G. F. Till, D. Wagstaff and L. F. G. Wright); 2, L.A.C. (G. Wolff, H. R. Knights, A. K. Bawa and F. G. Moulton). Time: 46 2-3 secs. Five and a half yards separated the two teams, and Godalming A.C. were 5½ yards further behind.

Final result: L.A.C., 32 points; O.F.A.C., 22 points; G.A.C., 10 points.

THE TRUST FUND INSURANCE BUREAU.

We are especially reminded of the title of the Bureau this year, as the Trust Fund has completed its first constructive transaction—the making of a grant to an Old Boy for the purpose of purchasing technical books. The recipient is Mr. V. H. Rumble, who becomes the first to benefit by the great scheme which we initiated four years ago. This is a cheering matter to report.

It is unfortunate that we cannot write with equal cheerfulness about remaining Bureau matters. The results this year have been extremely poor, and will almost certainly show an income falling by two-thirds below last year's record results. We must not be too ready to blame the economic depression, but must ask ourselves seriously whether we are giving the amount of thought and effort which we could give to the scheme.

The enclosed red slips suggest that it is not an impossible effort to make, yet one which produces a double benefit: first to the fund, and, secondly, to the insured who is wise enough to establish the habit of life insurance at an age when premiums are low, for benefits become more costly the longer they are deferred.

I do not wish to be an alarmist, nor to suggest that the scheme is failing; but I do want to remind those who may think that progress is automatic and needs no special effort on the part of members that the scheme can fail if results fall permanently to a level which will cease to pay any Insurance Company to run the scheme. I will not believe there is a single member who would not spare an effort to avoid such a remote but possible contingency.

O.F.A. MEMORIAL FIELD.

Anyone can see for himself that the work of levelling is making good progress. Early in the New Year the Committee hopes to be in the position to say exactly how much more money will be wanted for soiling, sowing, fencing, etc.

The gratifying result of the last Fête shows that people have not lost interest in the project, slow though it necessarily must be to mature; and there is no reason to think that support will be withdrawn until the whole work is completed.

We shall have to have another big Dance in the Spring, but we cannot expect to do anything else of a concerted nature in 1934, in view of the forthcoming efforts for Trimmer's Cottage Hospital.

However, perhaps when we can say with any certitude how much more money we want, further subscriptions will materialise!

Since the last issue, the Fund has been increased as follows: Fête (22nd July, 1933), £171 9s.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Young, £3 3s.; Mr. C. J. Parsons, 5s.

O.F.A. CRICKET CLUB.

With a delightful summer to help us, and the acquisition of several "brilliant" new members to add to the already "shining lights" of our Club, it can be said that the closure of the 1933 season was the only dull moment.

Included amongst our players were three Colonial Old Boys—A. B. Dickson, C. J. E. Jarvis and E. G. Marsh—home on leave, to whom we were pleased to extend a hearty welcome. Additional fixtures to those of previous years had been arranged and, despite the fact that superior opposition was encountered, it is pleasing to relate that successes outnumbered our failures.

True, we opened badly as far as batting was concerned, but soon we were to learn that this was but a momentary lapse, as the later exhibitions showed.

L. E. Lord, with an average of 20, was the leading batsman, but L. E. Furlonger, J. Wing (these our opening pair for the past two seasons) and F. O. M. Taylor all had creditable averages. The bowling was in the hands of H. Wilkinson (44 wickets), J. Wing (44), L. E. Lord (39) and H. S. North (28), and their performances gave our other players little desire to show their skill with the ball. Yet it is to be hoped that the latter will still continue to practise at the nets, for our leading bowlers of to-day will be only too happy in the interests of the Club to field at their direction.

Our first game against the School we leave the boys to report, for they undoubtedly earned that right. We lost and offer no excuses. As for the second game, let us hasten to say we won, and we reserve the right to report that, and will not take any excuses. The importance of the occasion seemed too big for "The Present"; they were skittled out by Wing and Wilkinson for a paltry 32 runs, a total so easily passed that all interest was lost in the game, save perhaps for their laborious efforts to avoid an innings' defeat against sundry bowlers, after we had declared at the modest total of 93 for 6 wickets.

Our victory over Friary Brewery at Guildford was due to inspired fielding in our opponents' second innings, whilst all credit for the home victory against Brook must go to R. H. M. Taylor and W. Blake, the latter causing the fieldsmen to survey the countryside in search of "lost balls."

There were, of course, other exciting games, and in addition to the players already mentioned, several creditable performances were made by various members; in fact, everybody played his part well. L. E. Lord, the captain, rendered great help in many ways, whilst L. E. Furlonger, as vice-captain, fulfilled his duties well in the former's absence. These two, with the Hon. Secretary (C. E. Jones) constituted the selection committee, whilst Messrs. E. G. Glynn, E. C. Patrick and J. Wing were members of the general committee.

Thanks are due to all who helped to make the season so successful, particularly to Mr. Morgan, whose many kindnesses were sincerely appreciated as in the past, and to Mr. Harrington and his son (a present boy), who so ably carried out the duties of umpire and scorer respectively each week.

Everything went well; our gear now leaves little to be desired; and the performances of the past season have led other clubs to view us as worthy opponents. Thus, I hope that, with the new ground, we shall be able to run two XI's and afford an opportunity to the exiles with other clubs of returning to their first love and rendering assistance to the Association of which we are all so proud.

September 9th: v. Brook (Home)—Won by 62 runs.

Brook.—63 (N. J. Phillips 4 for 23).

O.F.A.—125 (R. H. Taylor 31, W. Blake 25, J. Wing 18, L. E. Furlonger and W. S. L. Smallman 13 each).

O.F.A. ATHLETIC CLUB.

On reviewing the past season's activities one cannot help feeling that our "miniature" athletic club (for it has no more than ten active members) has again "achieved greatness," not so much by overwhelming victories, but by competing on an equal standard with any club in the neighbourhood and producing results of which we can surely be proud.

To forget for a moment our victories and defeats, I feel I must pass on some information which, to me, is of far greater importance than a record number of wins, and that is the interest which our Club, throughout its three seasons of activity, has aroused in athletics among the present boys of our old School. Their interest and enthusiasm in the matches held on the School field cannot be overlooked, and if it leads to better performances at the House and School Sports, then our existence as a Club is fully justified.

Before giving the results of the various matches I would like to mention what may be regarded as an event in the history of the School—the honour of entertaining the London Athletic Club on Fête Day. It was a momentous occasion, and I am pleased to record a great success of this ambitious and enterprising fixture. Thanks are due, not only to our gallant band of members, but to all those who assisted on that memorable afternoon. It was an event which will undoubtedly be remembered by many. Results:—

June 8th.—Old Farnhamians' A.C. v. Godalming A.C. at Godalming: Lost, 15 points to 18.

July 6th.—Old Farnhamians' A.C. v. Farnborough Y.M.C.A. at Farnham: Won, 21 points to 12.

July 12th.—Old Farnhamians' A.C. v. Aldershot O.B. at Farnham: Won, 22 points to 11.

July 22nd.—Triangular Contest between Old Farnhamians' A.C., Godalming A.C. and London Athletic Club at Farnham. (See report of Fête).

“The chariots shall rage in the streets; they shall jostle one against the other in the broad ways.”

The writer of these lines, if he wished to make a prediction, did so with a remarkable degree of accuracy. Chariots, in the form of trams and omnibuses, often “jostle” each other, or nearly so, in London streets to-day. When this happens the conductors of the respective vehicles will engage upon a hearty, and not altogether complimentary, description of one another. This is terminated by the arrival of a member of the Metropolitan Police, who pompously and unhesitatingly gives orders to move along. A policeman without his “move along there” is like an egg without salt. This, however, is about conductors: “revenons à nos moutons.”

The conductor does not often actually quarrel. He is wont to be quite a harmless individual, who will give a helping hand to old gentlemen making gallant attempts to board a moving bus, and who can be considerate in the extreme. He has his taciturn moments. If you jump on a bus and start to go up the stairs, no word will escape his lips, but he will rattle the coppers in his very complicated pouch and look at you appealingly for your fare. Take your seat in the ordinary manner and you see him edge forward with a stentorian demand for fares. This call for fares is insistent; so unceasing is it that I believe he would still call for fares if the bus were empty.

An accent is the hall mark of a good conductor, just as it is of a newspaper seller or a railway porter. Some young and inexperienced conductors may speak with an Oxford accent, but you must treat these with contempt and may safely give them ten shilling notes to change. Do so to a fully-fledged official and you will be given a half incredulous glare, a dozen sixpences and about three shillings' worth of coppers in your change. These will be given you at irregular intervals after much diving into remote parts of the pouch and much groping into seemingly innumerable waistcoats.

Only one thing annoys a conductor more than a note; that is when some unfortunate individual allows himself to be carried past his right stopping place. He is regarded with a look such as we would give to a lunatic or to a conjuror who fails to do his trick correctly—a look of pity mingled artistically with contempt and scorn. "There you are, sir," the conductor explains. "I called out Leicester Square five minutes ago. It's not my fault. You'll have to go back; catch a 23 bus. You can't blame me. . . ." The offender slinks furtively away.

Perhaps of all his assets his legs are the most valuable. Thus he will stand, mile after mile, swaying slightly, now sucking his pencil, now adding up half a crown and ninepence, and probably making three and six. Where did he get his bus legs? one is tempted to ask. Perhaps, when at school, he did his homework in the train. Who knows?

THIS CITY BUSINESS.

We arise from our rude country beds in the early hours of the morning, to the sound of the lowing of cattle in the woods. A mere ten minutes later we are to be seen rushing head-long for the Station with the smooth, easy action of a Venetian blind mender out on a spree. We are completing our toilet en route—a glass of water in one hand and a tooth brush in another. Remnants of a partly-consumed breakfast cutely camouflage our countenance, while the daily paper nestles with obvious enjoyment under our left arm.

With a great spurt and a flying leap we sail through a window into a compartment of the train, which should be standing in the Station, waiting for us. A porter comes and closes the door, and a bogey man trickles along to oil the wheels. If we have boarded the right train, which is the one we intended to catch, we pick ourselves up and place ourselves neatly on a seat. If we haven't we don't, which is considered rather a shame in train-boarding circles.

We now perhaps take out a book, "The Muffled Murder of the Muslim Mugwump," and delve deeply into its contents. Meanwhile the train gathers speed, which it places in buckets for use in case of fire.

Towns flash by and, to the eye, appear to recede into the passed. Suddenly a cry, plaintive, yet right from the heart, comes echoing down the train. From mouth to mouth—yea, from lip to lip—passes the magical word: "Waterloo!" "Waterloo?" "Waterloo!"

What a crowd! What a day! What a whirl! We are in the Station and out of the train. Taxis move by with a motion that only an automobile could emulate. Porters hurry here and there and then back again, their ever-open palms held out before them like guiding feelers, ready to touch the first passer-by. Stationmasters mingle with the moving maelstrom, distributing pamphlets advertising their forthcoming annual whist drive in aid of the Old Folks Free Cremation Fund. Here and there are seen members of the London Police—information bureaux that cost London a sum so large it can only be measured in terms of money. Thousands of people are pushing and pulling in a vain endeavour to stand under a large clock suspended from the ceiling. Members of every race and creed are represented in the vast crowds. A party of Malays are sitting round their camp fire in one corner, singing and eating their curried Caribou at the same time. In another corner a committee of the A.O.T.T. is going through the motions.

In the distance looms an opening through which large quantities of nature and sky are coming in. We make for it and pass out into the world. After winding our way through crooked streets we step over Waterloo Bridge. We are on foot that we may better appreciate the beauty which surrounds us. Sometimes we even walk. Multitudes of beings press themselves on all sides, like taxi-drivers seeking the sixpence or hunting the half-crown. The whole place is littered with people. Beneath the bridge flows the Thames, moving towards its source with every flow and as smooth and glassy as the Temple stairs or Aldersgate Mansions. Gulls, hawks, wasps, ants and flags fly overhead. Aeroplanes scatter in all directions, and the heavens are full of air. Sky-scrapers are busy at work clearing a way for the sun, which soon sends its rays beating down on the embankment with that staccato roar peculiar to the hailstone and the Lesser Twittle-Berry.

What a sight greets us as we enter the Strand. Black Marias hurtle through the City, from north to south, with their cargoes of crime and vice. Machine gun bullets are dripping from their exhausts and gas-bombs rub shoulders with ludo-boards in the detectives' pockets. Ambulances wend their ways slowly along the curbside, stopping every few yards to pick up injured pedestrians.

Neon lights flash, flicker and go out. Buses come, trams go, taxis stop. We are in the City.

LEARNING TO FLY.

When I decided to learn to fly, it was not merely my insatiable thirst for something new, but a sudden realisation that in a very few years, anyone not being able to fly would be severely handicapped in this chaotic struggle for existence.

Aviation is definitely the thing of the future. To anyone who doubts this I would commend a perusal of the rapidly growing passenger lists of such concerns as Imperial Airways.

Internal air lines are opening up in this country; business men are waking up to the fact that air travel is so very much quicker than any other means of transport, and, in these days time means money. Apart from the business point of view, flying is a wonderful nerve tonic, unless you are not possessed of sound nerves—in which case I would advise that you stay on terra firma. It certainly speeds up the brain. As the Instructor so aptly remarked one day: "One has to think quickly in an aeroplane."

The first step in learning to fly is to have the Trial Lesson, which to my mind is an absolute snare. You are allowed to handle the controls one at a time under the direction of the Instructor, and imagine that flying is absurdly easy. On landing, the Instructor tells you, not what he thinks of you—that follows later—but whether he thinks you are worth teaching or not.

You decide an early date for your first lesson, and having bought, begged or borrowed the necessary kit, present yourself full of unbounded optimism. You climb into the machine, connect up the telephones, and the Instructor takes the machine up to 1,000 feet. You are then told to put your feet on the rudder-bar and your right hand on the control column or "stick." You are told to watch the air speed, engine revs., to keep the wings level, to keep the nose on the horizon and to fly straight.

As I said, absurdly easy—you try to do everything at once, with the result that while you are looking at the instrument panel your nose has fallen off the horizon or else you are climbing all over the place. Your ears tingle as your Instructor mildly asks what you are doing and why, and you begin to feel that you are the biggest ham-fisted ass that ever climbed into a cockpit.

After a while you learn to make all the movements smoothly and even find time to look around and perhaps sing. This however seemed to upset the machine when I did it, so I thought I had better stop. I have never yet been congratulated on my vocal ability and, now I think of it, I have often noticed people clench their fists and, with agonised faces, depart hurriedly when I burst into song.

You advance to "take-offs" and "approaches" for landing and during these early lessons it is the most comforting thing in the world to hear the Instructor say "Alright, I've got her," as he takes over the control and lands the machine.

At last comes the great day when you make three perfect 3-point landings . . . Your Instructor tells you that he thinks you can go solo next time. Your heart swells, and you think you are approaching the Lindbergh stage and you begin working out in your mind the control movements for a "falling leaf" and other aerobatics.

The next time comes. The Instructor announces that he will make quite sure that you are safe to go solo. With head held high you walk out to the 'plane, climb in and prepare to take off. You push the throttle fully open and then things begin to happen. Here are some of the less rude parts of the ensuing castigation:—

"Take that lead off your boots."

"Don't swing about all over the aerodrome."

"What's the matter with your turns this morning? Put on more bank."

"You have shut off too soon. You will never reach the aerodrome from here. More engine quickly. Keep your right wing up. Keep your nose down or you will stall the 'plane."

"You missed the top of that tree by about six inches."

"You are flattening out too soon—you're too high."

With a bump the machine hits the deck and rebounds about ten feet into the air and you make what you imagine to be the worst landing ever seen. The Instructor sadly shakes his head and tells you that you made a perfect landing, only you made it 20 feet up!

After this you crawl home determined never to fly again—and so you turn up again at the earliest opportunity and keep on until you are pronounced a more or less safe pilot.

Flying has one great fault. Once you start it, you cannot stop, but never again comes that thrill of your first solo.

I wonder why one can never recapture the thrill of a first experience.

Died of injuries received on football field.

NEWS OF OLD BOYS.

J. R. Hoar (1927-1933) is settling down to work—"not strenuous during the day"—at Harrods. He is taking a three-year course in textiles at Westminster, attending lectures twice a week and still putting in "homework" (about 10 hours a week!)

V. P. Gardner (1917-1919) has been sent to H.M.S. "Valiant" for twelve months to await promotion to warrant officer, after a strenuous year in the Gunnery School at Chatham. He passed the final examination in Gunnery quite well and came out top of the three Port Divisions (Portsmouth, Devonport and Chatham) in the educational papers. Next January he goes on a cruise to the West Indies, which should prove quite interesting and a change from the Far East, where he spent about five years of his service.

E. H. Heath (1919-1924) writes from Stoke, Devonport, that he is "on the road" for William Crawford and Sons, of Liverpool. Being so far away in the West has its disadvantages, but he is fortunate to be with a very fine "House."

L. G. White (1920-1924) is taking a short course at Loughborough College in preparation for the Second Handicraft Examination of the City and Guilds. If he is successful, he hopes to get into the Teachers' Training Department there in 1934 for a two-year course.

L. C. W. Fitzwalter (1921-1923) sends news that he is now married [Congratulations!] and has settled down at Denholm, near Hawick. During the summer he took part in small-bore and full-bore rifle shooting, being a member of the team which carried off all the Roxburghshire County honours. He was successful in winning a Challenge Cup in individual competition, as well as a few lesser prizes. He suggests that the O.F.A. Rifle Club should commence a postal competition open to all Old Boys interested in the sport who are isolated from O.F.A. competitions and "dear old Farnham." [O.F.A. Rifle Club Secretary please note!—Ed.]. He promises an article for the Magazine.

E. N. Webb (1919-1924) won the Club Tennis Championship at Golders Green, both singles and doubles.

N. J. Phillips (1921-1932) is captain of the Goldsmiths' College Football Club, which has an unbeaten record and a very flattering goal average (to date)! He has played for the University of London A.F.C. Congratulations!

W. F. Alderton (1904-1911) is now one of the Divisional Surveyors with the Gloucestershire County Council. His Division covers about 100 square miles all round Stroud, some of the most lovely country he knows of. His brother is still in South Africa, in charge of the Intake Reservoirs for Durban, miles up country away from anybody, his nearest neighbour distant some ten miles; he has a son and heir.

W. E. Loe (1892-1898) has been presented with the "Long Service" Medal of the Hampshire Football Association. This well-earned reward carries with it "elevation" to the Life Vice-Presidents' list.

E. A. Drew (1929-1933) is settling down to college life in London, at first peculiar and "very free," but becoming more familiar.

H. Woodyear-Smith (1914-1916) writes from Hamilton, Waikato, New Zealand: "I am particularly glad to see the O.F.A. growing in membership. The boys at present attending the School have little idea how the fact of being a member of the Old Boys' Association helps me, and it would be very nice indeed if each boy, when he left School, joined the O.F.A."

"I very much enjoy the copies of 'The Farnhamian,' which is much improved. The House Notes are also interesting, and naturally I give my support to my old House, Harding."

"Since I have been in New Zealand I have met several Old Farnhamians—amongst them a Captain Baker, who was before my time but who would be remembered by Mr. William Stroud and Dr. Brown. Captain Baker was very badly wounded in the Great War and was decorated two or three times."

"Then there were two young men named Higgins, who were both at F.G.S. I don't remember their years, but they were much later than I was. Captain Baker and I attempted to form a branch of the O.F.A. out here. We advertised in the Press, but unfortunately the response was poor. As far as we could make out, there were about 15 Old Farnhamians in this Dominion. I feel very envious of those Old Boys who can revisit the Old School from time to time!

"I have been in New Zealand since 1922. As a country, it is certainly a marvellous place, the scenery being very wonderful. I do not, however, advise any Old Farnhamian to try his luck out here without a substantial cash backing. This Dominion is 100 per cent. agricultural, and professional opportunities for young Englishmen are not to be either made or found. The population of New Zealand is roughly, 1,600,000, including Maoris—and of the total there are nearly 80,000 on the unemployed register. If any Old Farnhamian has thoughts of coming out here, I hope he will write to me first and I might be able to give him some advice.

"For some years after I landed in New Zealand I contented myself with mastering the colonial conditions, which were occasionally difficult. I saw a great deal of the country, besides paying my way. The world conditions at that time, of course, were not upset. Later I joined the New Zealand Department of Agriculture in the Professional Division, as an Instructor. Since then I have been appointed as Technical Adviser to the largest Fertilizer Company in the Dominion.

"In 1931, while living in Hawke's Bay, I experienced that terrific upheaval, the great Hawke's Bay earthquake, when several towns were destroyed and several hundreds of people lost their lives, whilst hundreds of others were injured. The damage to property ran into millions. One can imagine Farnham as a town at 10.50 a.m.; at 10.51 a.m. a heap of debris. That is actually the kind of thing which happened. It would take too long to describe, but I do not suppose many other Old Farnhamians have seen and actually felt the power of the mighty natural forces as was the case in Hawke's Bay, New Zealand.

"Kind remembrances to Mr. Withinshaw, who, I hope, remembers our camp on Mr. Stratton's Farm in Wiltshire in 1914; also to Mr. Kingcome and Mr. Ridout, about whom I have still pleasant recollections, especially the periods of detention! They will probably remember 'Jumbo' and his '99's'!

"Kindest regards to Mr. William Stroud—one of the finest men I have ever met—and also to Dr. Brown.

"My very best wishes to the Old School.—H.W.S."

T. G. Lyons (1924-1927) has now left Sandhurst and has been gazetted to the North Staffordshire Regiment. His brother (H. J.) writes to say that he has taken his B.Sc. (Econ.) and is now studying for his Master's degree. He hoped to join the teaching staff of the University on the advice of his Tutor, but recent events in Germany have altered his prospects. Posts have been filled by refugees from that country, admittedly men of repute who would otherwise be destitute, to the exclusion of young British aspirants. To redress the balance, he is learning German, along with Economics, and proposes to teach in Germany if possible. Good wishes!

R. S. Jefferies (1918-1926) has obtained Second Class Honours in Economics at London.

V. H. Rumble (1925-1932) was successful in the Customs and Excise Examination which he took just to pass away time during his last term at School. In fact, his avuncular ways so impressed the viva voce examiners that he improved his final position to 55th out of 960 candidates. We understand, however, that he has decided not to play for safety, but will continue with the Anglo-Persian Oil Company. Well done, Vic! May you strike oil!

L. F. G. Wright (1925-1927) last July won the 100 Yards Championship of the Phoenix Insurance Company, in 10 seconds. This is the fifth occasion on which he has won this event.

W. A. Gardiner (1924-1931) gained First-Class Honours in Chemistry in the Final Degree Examination of the University of London. He has been awarded at King's College the John Millar Thomson Medal for Chemistry; also the Layton Research Scholarship, value £150 a year, at King's College, London.

J. W. Brooker (1924-1930) last summer won the Club Championship of the Farnham Swimming Club, decided on three races of two lengths—free style, breast stroke and back stroke. P. A. Lintern (1922-1930) won the breast stroke event.

E. C. Patrick (1920-1926) was a member of the Surrey County Shooting Team which, for the first time, won the English XX. Club Championship.

P. A. Lintern (1922-1930) has been awarded by the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research a Scholarship of £100 a year for two years to continue his research work at University College. After that, we hope to be able to address him as "Dr. Phil."

A. G. Morton (1925-1932) has passed the Inter-B.Sc. Examination of London University, from the Imperial College of Science.

J. C. Kingcome (1919-1930), J. W. Wing (1921-1929), G. F. Till (1926-1928) and A. F. Swan (1920-1922) represented Farnham against the Young Players of Surrey during the Farnham Cricket Week. Kingcome scored 53 not out and Swan took 7 wickets for 19 runs. W. N. B. George (1929-1932), N. H. Hillyer (1919-1924), A. R. Stay (1928-1932), R. Kimber (1925-1929), A. H. D. Stedman (1907-1912), R. F. Baker (1924-1926) and W. T. Munfield (1919-1923) also played for Farnham during that week.

H. E. Cook (1926-1933) was a member of a team of divers (four) representing Farnham which was successful in winning a Challenge Cup presented for a contest between teams representing Farnham, Aldershot and Guildford.

The Air Ministry has made a posthumous award of the India General Service Medal and Clasp to the late Flying Officer "Dick"

Stroud, who was killed on May 17th, 1930, while flying on duty. The R.A.F. were bombing a hostile area on the North-West Frontier of India.

G. W. S. Morris (1928-1930) has passed the Intermediate Examination of the Surveyors' Institute.

LONDON DINNER.

An attempt was made to run an Old Farnhamians' Dinner in London on the lines of that held last year, but it had to be abandoned owing to lack of support. Thus ended an attempt to extend O.F.A. activities beyond the limits of the Farnham district. We hope Old Boys living in London will make an effort to come to the Farnham Dinner in January.
